Co-Head of the newly launched Global Health Programme

The independent think tank foraus publishes science-based policy recommendations in the form of discussion papers, policy briefs and blog posts, and organizes high-level debates with the aim of creating innovative solutions for the foreign policy of tomorrow. foraus was founded in 2009 and is based on a unique grassroots model with several hundred volunteers in Switzerland and abroad.

Foreign policy is your passion and you would like to use your knowledge and creative ideas to actively shape the politics of tomorrow? For the newly established Global Health programme, we are looking for a person who is interested in foreign policy and has experience in academia, the public or private sector with a demonstrated understanding of the main discussion topics at regional and international level in public health, healthcare delivery, or the related topics affecting the medical and life sciences industries. The Global Health Programme focuses on providing constructive evidence-based policy recommendations to Swiss and international stakeholders looking to address the key questions in this field. Concrete priorities are set by the Co-Heads of the programme and the Board. As the programme is just being launched, the Co-Head will have significant input in shaping the strategic direction of the programme for the years to come. A link to other programmes and regional groups for joint projects is desired.

As Co-Head of the programme

- you initiate and issue publications together with your fellow Head of programme and foraus members, using your expertise to ensure the relevance and quality of the products,
- you are jointly responsible for the strategic and content-related planning of the programme,
- you are available for media inquiries,
- you maintain a thematic network with universities, policy makers and administration,
- you co-organize events with regional groups or other programmes,
- you are responsible for a strong thematic community that goes beyond language borders,
- you take part in the monthly action calls and the bi-annual foraus retreat,
- you are in close contact with the Zurich and Geneva offices.

We offer you an exciting environment to grow your network and gain unique experience in an innovative think tank.

We look forward to receiving your application with a curriculum vitae and a cover letter by 19th of July, addressed to Barna Posta, co-head of the Programm Global Health. For further information please do not hesitate to contact us.

foraus is committed to promoting diversity and balance in the team and wants to offer applicants of all religions, backgrounds and genders the same opportunity. A foraus membership is a prerequisite for this position, but can be acquired subsequently with a few clicks here.
