

foraus – Swiss Forum on Foreign Policy is seeking, as per 1. June (or by arrangement) in a voluntary capacity, a Co-Lead for the Global Health Program

foraus is the Swiss participatory think tank on foreign policy. As a vibrant grassroots community of young people, we shape foreign policy, shape how foreign policy is made and enable new voices to grow, domestically as well as internationally. We publish evidence-based, high-quality content with constructive policy recommendations, organise thought-provoking events and develop innovative tools for engagement and impact, with the aim to address global challenges.

We are looking for a volunteer co-lead who is interested in Swiss foreign policy and brings expertise in the field of global health. In terms of content, the Global Health program currently covers aspects of the One Health approach at the Swiss and international level. We are working on the analysis and evaluation of the approach in a global health context to prevent future pandemics. However, we are not limited to this topic and are interested in any topic dealing with global health and having an impact on Swiss foreign policy. The concrete priorities are primarily established by the program leaders in collaboration with the members and the foraus committee. It is also desirable to establish links with other thematic groups for the joint treatment of topics.

As Co-Lead,

- You manage foraus publications in collaboration with the program co-leader and members, and use your expertise to ensure the relevance and quality of the productions.
- You are responsible for strategic and substantive planning for the program.
- You are available to answer questions from the media.
- You maintain a network with the academic, political and administrative world.
- You co-organize events with the regional and other thematic groups.
- You are responsible for a strong thematic community that transcends language barriers.
- You participate in monthly Action Calls and the bi-annual retreat.
- You are in close contact with the offices in Geneva and Bern.

We offer you an exciting opportunity to build an outstanding network as well as unique experiences in an innovative think tank.
